Christmas packages for the troops

One of our Participants with a son in the service (now a Petty Officer 3rd Class) set to deploy in the spring, reminded me that it's time to send packages to the troops to get them there for Christmas and suggested we go to www.anysailor.com www.anymarine.com www.anysoldier.com . I went and found five WEBBs currently deployed and on the www.anysoldier.com (2 also listed on anymarine, none listed at this point on anysailor). While I will not post their names and addresses, I will tell you that they have asked for the following items (small sizes good for packing!):

Powdered Energy Drink
Single size drink mixes
Snack size treats
Popcorn
Trail mix

Extra Christmas cards
Envelopes
Stationery

PLEASE KEEP YOUR EMAIL UPDATED ON YOUR PERSONAL PAGES AT THE TESTING COMPANY! I am using the BULK MAIL utility, and at least 20 of your email addresses are "bad." You cannot receive notices from the testing firm regarding matches, nor notices from me if your email address is no longer valid. With close to 200 of you now, counting researchers and testees, I cannot call you all to get good email addys, nor can I be expected to make those changes at the testing firms for you.

SIGNING ON TO YOUR PERSONAL PAGE

Go to the testing company's home page and look for the login boxes. Put in your kit number and if you do not remember your password, click on "Forgotten your password?"

Port of London – Elizabethan London

Dyse Quay. Owned by James Bacon who inherited from his father, alderman James Bacon, in 1573. The alderman had bought it for £900 from Robert Brittein, who presumably acquired the property from William Breton, the owner in 1559. (fn. 13) The quay, described in 1582 as being 'open without protection', was used almost entirely by coasters. The tenant was alderman William Webb.

Old Thrustons Quay. Also called Haddocks Quay, it was owned in 1582 by alderman Webb who leased out part of the property with Dyse Quay for £40.

letter dated January 30, 1832 from George M. Waters to Wilson Lumpkin, Governor of Georgia (1831-1835), echoing an earlier letter to General John Coffee (tcc700). Waters asserts that several individuals, including John Hamilton, Andrew Hamilton, Zachariah Slayton, Philip Coleman, Clinton Webb, Mr. Green, and John Miller, unlawfully cleared and cultivated his land along the Chattahoochee River. Waters claims this land as a Cherokee descendant, which some of the above individuals disputed in their own legal claims (tcc701). Waters states that the unlawful intrusion has limited the number of acres that he himself is able to cultivate. He therefore asks the governor to have these individuals removed from his property. Another letter related to this dispute is tcc704.

Virginia [Early]

The following is excerpts from a book called "A History of the Foster Family of Spartanburg County SC and Amelia Court House, Virginia. By T D Foster, 1972

"The first census in Virginia was ordered and taken in 1623. At this time, Sir George Yeardly, Capt John Smith's replacement, was living in James Cytte with his wife. Down the street a bit lived a John Foster, and in nearby Martin's Hundred lived William Foster. (A "hundred" was the amount of land required to support 100 families). These two Fosters are the first recorded in America."

"John Foster disappears from history, but William was enough of a character to leave some footprints. We know he came from England on the ship SWANN because he was a witness at a trial in 1621 or 1622 and testified before John Smith and the Council as recorded in the following minutes: 'William Foster sworn and examined sayeth, that he this deponent demanded of Mr. Nevelle at Canada being aboard the SWANN wherefore Mr. Cormishe was hinged, unto whom Nevelle answered he was hinged for a rascally boye wrongfully, and that had heard Mr. Nevelle say so divers tymes'."

"William Foster got himself in dutch with Mr. Nevelle again, this time by stealing from the latter's cabin. In Feb 1622, John Smyth ruled as follows: 'John Webb, John Greene, and William Foster shall pay each of them twenty li(?) weight of best tobacco, pay for stealing from Edmon Nevelle's cabin. And whereas the said three men to approach each other yt is ordered they shall be examined at Elizabeth Cytte by Captain Tucker'. Nothing further of this escapade is recorded." <http://www.geocities.com/Heartland/Ranch/3599/Misc.html>

Burial of Robert B. Webb

Minden, April 12 – The burial here Sunday afternoon of the remains of Robert B. Webb, only son of Junius Y. Webb, and wife, Lena Bridger Webb, of Dallas, Texas, who died on Saturday (sic) morning last at Austin, TX where he was just completing the last few weeks of his collegiate course, was the cause of a great deal of sorrow and aroused a sympathy most profound in the hearts of Minden's citizens here, where the family is so well known, respected and loved. Handsome, intelligent, loyal to truth, duty and uncompromising in his defense of right, Robert was the embodiment of a pure, well developed manhood, who amid changes of scene and association maintained unsullied the beautiful character developed at home by a fond father and mother, and the sweet association with a loved and only sister.
